Have received many interesting comments on the reference to "Scottie Cramp" in this column. Some of them, I feel, should be transmitted to the readers, and I wish to thank each and every correspondent.

Jean Craft, in her excellent newsletter of the Heart of America Scottish Terrier Club, "Diehard Doin's," mentions that she scanned old dog magazines and came up with this, specific source not stated:

"Tetany; irregular, possibly recessive gene. Found mainly in Scottish Terriers, but occasionally in other breeds. More commonly known as "Scottish Cramp," a condition in which stiffness and rigidity occurs when dog is excited or exercised. Was probably introduced through one strain and possibly by one particular sire. It was considered by 1959 to be lessening in incidence."

Tetany, is defined in the dictionary as "a disease characterized by irregularly intermittent muscular spasms, especially in the extremities, usually accompanied by fever."

Jean also states, and I heartily concur, that "Breeders should discuss breeders problems. Subjects such as "Scottie Cramp" and "Swimmers" should be discussed more freely instead of hiding them away like skeletons in a closet."

F. J. (Bob) Bartos, of Carnation Farms Kennels, in answer to my inquiry writes, re "Scottie Cramp,"

CH. MARLORAIN PROUD PIPER, shown going Best of Breed at Antelope Valley K. C., Dec. 13, 1964 over an entry which included 5 Specials, under judge, Mrs. H. Hotchkiss Neal. Finished in May, 1964, "Piper" has amassed 7 BOBs, 1 Group First, 2 Seconds and 1 Third, and 3 of his get have finished their championships. He is handled by Daisy Austad, and owned by Marlorain Kennels, Harbor City, Calif. (Ludwig photo)

"I have seen it occur in all parts of the country from many different bloodlines and breedings throughout these many years. We have been free of it but I do realize it can crop out in any litter, as through the years I get letters and inquiries on the subject from the different breeders. However, the last few years it has apparently not been a problem. No one, to my knowledge, has ever been able to come up with a comprehensive answer. There are apparently different forms of it and each animal or group respond as they do through different phases. Bitches having displayed it have been bred with none of their offspring in several generations again showing it. Others have reproduced it in their immediate offspring. It is a bit difficult to prove it hereditary, or just a combination of many other factors, plus the chances of coincidence."

"It may show up by the third or fourth month, then again may not develop until much later in life—the 5th to 6th year. The ones people are most aware of are the puppies that develop the problem. There is a possibility that a new experimental drug may be of help in these cases. As yet I know of no one who has used it as a specific. We have not had a case to try it on, but I feel there is a possibility it may be beneficial to the point of correcting the problem. The drug is being used in horses, cattle, sheep, pigs, and dogs. In horses it has proven very beneficial in the control of muscle tie-up (Azorturia)."

"As I said, the drug is still experimental, and in talking with our Veterinary Dept., they suggested if needed your veterinarian write Henry C. Burns of H. C. Burns Co., as to availability of the drug C-SE (Selenium Tocopheryl) as an application must be made for its use. I think it is worth a try."

It is indeed encouraging to know that research continues for diagnosis and treatment of this condition, and let's hope that this new drug may be the answer.

A breeder in the Midwest wrote that she had one afflicted puppy in a large litter, but placed him in a home where she can watch his progress. Now, he is over a year old, and other than being a nervous dog, seems normal. She further states that when the dog dies, he will be posted to try to determine a cause. She also deplores the destroying of afflicted pups, and states that she has heard of whole litters being put to sleep when the symptoms appear. Through her and other breeders' conscientious efforts to find the answer, eventually the breed will be rid of this scourge.

Among other mail, it was heartwarming to receive contributions to the Alaska Quake Disaster Fund, which were forwarded with the specific request that the monies be used for the Fullers' Scotties. Many thanks to all who contributed.
