COVER STORY

CH. ASHMOOR at the RITZ

"RITZY GIRL" has attracted enthusiastic looks and comments from breeders, exhibitors, and judges since her first group wins at matches. I am grateful to those who continue to recognize this two year old's elegance and showmanship. In the last nine months, she has earned two specialty Best of Winners, two specialty Best of Breeds, eight Best of Breeds at all breed shows and three Group placements over Best in Show terriers.

ASHMOOR thanks MRS. J. E. CLARK for this win and breeders DONALD AND CAROL PLOTT for the breeding of REDOUBTS' SALUTE TO ANSTAMM to CH. REALITY TASSIE LYNN which resulted in this elegant "RITZY GIRL".

The tallying committee for the STCA challenge trophies would like to remind members that all owners of a dog must be members in good standing of the STCA in order to qualify for the trophies. If only one owner of a co-owned dog is a member, points will not be tallied for that dog's wins.

NEW AWARD

The Board of Directors recently voted to recognize certificates given by the American Working Terrier Association. This includes the Certificate of Gameness, Working Certificate and Hunting Certificate.

The AWTA was founded in 1971 by Mrs. Patricia Adams Lent to encourage and promote through literature and field trials, the breeding, hunting and ownership of terriers of size, confirmation, and character to perform as working terriers. Since their creation the organization has grown to over 200 members holding trials across the country.

The trials are an opportunity for our members and the regional clubs to encourage both new members and old to retain the hunting instincts which made our breed so characteristically "terrier".

It is planned to present certificates and medallions each year at the annual meeting at Montgomery County. For more information please contact Claudia Leffler, 11502 Advance, Houston, Tx. 77065.

SELECTION OF JUDGES

The following Committee has already surveyed all breed Parent clubs as to their method of Specialty Judge selection. We are presently compiling this data for presentation. We would greatly appreciate your suggestions as to the method to be used to select our Specialty Judges.

CORRECTIONS:

Haste makes waste...how true this statement is. In rushing to get the Spring issue of the BAGPIPER in the mail before the STCA Michigan Rotating Specialty, it was decided to forego the second proofreading. Since the corrections had been made during the first proofreading, there should have been nothing to worry about...right? Wrong! Some place between correcting and printing of the Spring issue someone goofed!!

On the centerfold ad; we all know NANCY FINGERHUT has DANA'S SCOTTIES. On the back cover ad; BETTY COOPER'S CH. PERLOR PLAYBOY is a BALANCED dog...not ballanced!!

But more serious is the misspelling and omission on the inside front cover. This beautiful, loving tribute was made to CH. ANSTAMM ADVENTURESS. She was proudly owned and loved by MAJ. CINDY COOKE, 801 LEO STREET, DAYTON, OHIO 45404.

I cannot change what has been printed, but I can sincerely apologize to CINDY, NANCY, BETTY and to the readers and subscribers of the BAGPIPER.

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

Having been in office for nearly a year, I am now able to report the status of STCA affairs to the membership. Unfortunately, we face both the best and worst of times.

On the bright side, your Board has taken steps to finalize and publish the new grooming manual to be edited by Merle Taylor. We also have established an editorial staff to commence work on a new supplement to the Handbook. A committee has been formed to consider and recommend changes in the breed standard. A tentative program has been approved to solicit funds for health related research programs in areas of particular concern to our breed. We are launching efforts to participate with AKC in its newly evolving program for the education of judges. The Standing Operating Procedures Manual for officers and committees has been substantially completed subject to some fine tuning. The Constitution, By-Laws and Policies Manual is all but complete subject only to imminent proposed By-Law amendments. Eventually, we hope to publish the Constitution and By-Laws on an annual basis in the Membership Roster. Financial controls have been tightened internally and we have survived an IRS audit. Every reasonable savings and cost cutting opportunity is being explored diligently.

On the dark side, revenue shortages continue to plague us. Many programs and projects are being deferred because we simply cannot afford them. Our membership is not growing as it should. There are far too many Regional Club members who are not STCA members. Our dues structure drastically needs reworking. Presently on a cost basis the value of the literature in our membership packet exceeds the dues of a new member. Membership support of the Bagpiper through advertising has not materialized to the point that we can eliminate subsidies to this fine publication. We will have an operating deficit this year forcing us to use already slim reserves.

I sense that many of our members and Regional Clubs feel disenfranchised. You want to know more about what STCA is doing for you. It is my hope to improve our dialogue—to open lines of communication with you. However, you must remember that the STCA IS YOUR CLUB. Your Officers and Board use their best judgment for your benefit in running STCA. If you are dissatisfied with something or if you have a suggestion you feel is worthwhile, it is your DUTY to let us know. We want to hear from you. I invite each of you to write to me with your complaints and suggestions. I cannot promise they will all be acted upon favorably. However, I give you my solemn commitment they will be considered.

I thank each of you for the honor and trust you have bestowed upon me. I will do my very best to live up to your expectations and to make STCA an even better and more responsive organization.

He reported that the second notices for dues have been sent, deadline is June 1, 1983. The I.R.S. has completed their audit of our books and they are accepted as filed. However the I.R.S. has advised that future income can be taxable if it is derived from sources other than membership, i.e., income over $1,000. from non-member donations, advertising, show entries, etc. In effect at least half of our non-dues income could be considered taxable. Motion by John DeSaye/Alan Riga that the treasurer be authorized to set up a Reserve Account to deposit surplus monies towards publication of the new handbook. Motion carried. With regards to the audit and I.R.S. By-laws, Robert Marshall plans to revise the treasurer's portion of the S.O.P. for future treasurers' understanding of these changes. Motion Jackie Seelbach/Claudia Leffler to accept Treasurer's report. Motion carried.

COMMITTEE REPORTS

REGIONAL CLUB REPORT: Alan Riga reported that because of the various flight schedules there was no quorum. However, Alan distributed minutes of the last meeting, current articles on health and immunization. He reported that his Health Ch. Alan also advised that he sends the Reg. Club minutes to all Clubs and Editors of Newsletters.

NATIONAL SHOW CHAIRMAN: John DeSaye reported that all was in order for the Specialty this weekend. The raffle at this time has profited approximately $775.00 with sales still coming in. He reported there were some difficulties with the premium list and John made the motion, seconded by Kathi Brown to revise operating procedure for local clubs hosting a Specialty. Motion carried.

WAYS N MEANS: Alan Riga advised plans for Montgomery County. There will be a table at ringside for decals, books, brochures etc. A bazaar table shall be set up both Friday and Saturday night at hospitality to include items donated by Regional Clubs and/or members. With regards to past donations a letter from the HASTC was read advising they did not receive response for their donation. John DeSaye recommended that as representative for National Shows he should send the thank you notes and any necessary correspondence pertaining to these shows. Motion Betty McArthur/Kathi Brown that all Officers and Committee Chairman sending official letters of the S.T.C.A. be obligated to send copies to the Corresponding Secretary. Motion carried. Bill Justus sent a proposal to purchase pens or crates at a unit price. Chances to be sold at the Regional Club level with proceeds shared by both the Regional and National Club. Alan and Bill shall research the total costs for the October meeting.

BAGPIPER: Ch. Sandi Hach announced her Ad Chairman Jane Anderson. She requested consideration of the savings of ($1,000.00) yr. on bulk mailing in lieu of first class. Motion Kathi Brown/Robert Marshall for Sandi to cut down production time and try 3rd class mailing on a one time basis. Motion carried.

WORKING TERRIER ASSOC.: Ch. Claudia Leffler presented a Certificate of Merit for awards. Motion Robert Marshall/John DeSaye to accept Claudia's presentation and to authorize her to have them printed and awarded to any Scottish Terrier who passes the requirements set by the Working Terrier Assoc. Claudia amended the motion to include a Pewter Medallion presented along with the Certificate. The Award is to be made annually at Montgomery County. Motion carried.

AWARDS COMMITTEE: Betty Cooper presented a letter and sample from Ch. Helen Prince of the service plaque for award to any member who had previously received the Silver Service Medallion and who are to be recognized for their ongoing services, also to the members who should be recognized for services such as Chairman of Rotating Committees. Nominations for said award should be in writing to the Awards Committee no later than the Winter meeting.

SPECIALTY ARRANGEMENTS: Claudia Leffler proposed a booklet containing information of directions and time schedules to all shows, local Shopping Centers, Restaurants and all S.T.C.A. arrangements for the weekend. Motion Jackie Seelbach/Betty Cooper to have a Sit Down dinner at M. C. Motion carried.

GROOMING MANUAL: Merly Taylor reported that to date he had a text of approximately 28 pages including illustrations. The main purpose is to aid the novice and/or the pet owner. There are sections on: Striping/Rolling the coat/Equipment/Bathing/Preparing for the show/The day of the Show and General information. He wishes to include a section on Pet grooming. His committee shall review his finished form and if possible have a final draft at the October meeting.

MINI WORKSHOPS: Merle also reported that in order for the S.T.C.A. to justify the expense of a Mini-Workshop it should be at least two days. The Chairman and the local club can set the program, however it should not just be a grooming service, but an educational program. Motion by Alan Riga/John DeSaye to limit travel allowance cost to $350.00 with the understanding of flexibility if necessary only under Board approval. Motion carried.

UNFINISHED BUSINESS

JUDGES SELECTION PROCEDURE: The committee of Kathi Brown, Betty Cooper and Bill Justus sent survey letters to eighty All Breed Clubs requesting their procedure in selecting judges. Upon completion of com-

To the Membership: Please review this revised Code of Ethics, and respond with any comments at least two weeks prior to the Board Meeting (Sept. 23) to Corresponding Secretary, Kathi Brown.

CODE OF ETHICS

The Scottish Terrier Club of America was formed and exists to encourage and promote the breeding of pure-bred Scottish Terriers and to do all possible to bring their natural qualities to perfection. It is committed to do all in its power to protect and advance the interests of the breed and to encourage sportsmanlike competition at dog shows. Toward these ends, the following practices are condemned as unethical and, if proven, shall constitute misconduct prejudicial to the best interests of the Club or the breed as provided by Article VI of the By-Laws:

1. The indiscriminate breeding of stock without due regard for and consideration of hereditary defects; good health and physical condition of the stock so bred and the quality of puppies produced by such breeding.

2. The wholesaling of litters of puppies or selling of puppies or breeding stock to or through pet shops, catalog houses or other similar commercial sources of distribution;

3. The misrepresentation of or failure to disclose known hereditary defects, health and physical condition of any stock offered to anyone else for sale or breeding purposes.

4. The knowing violation of American Kennel Club rules regarding record keeping, registration, sale and transfer of dogs, or the rules and procedures regarding the exhibition of dogs.

By signing this Code of Ethics, I acknowledge that I understand and agree with the purposes of the Scottish Terrier Club of America; that I will do my best to promote the best interests of the Club and the breed; and, that I will not engage in any practice which is unethical or prejudicial to the best interests of the Club.

A DIFFERENT POINT OF VIEW

by Elizabeth Pagani

This is in response to John Marvin's article in the February, 1983 issue of the Bagpiper, regarding the entry of Scottish Terriers at all-breed dog shows. Mr. Marvin states, "...do your part and help make the Scottish Terrier breed entry-wise at these shows. It will surely result in improved quality and support. — In other words, good entries mean good dogs..."

I beg to differ. I think any exhibitor can attest to the fact that a large entry doesn't necessarily mean good dogs are being shown. At least here on the West Coast, a good entry merely means helping the handlers finish their dogs (sometimes inferior dogs) faster. And here, true competition — in the sense that most people think of it — doesn't exist.

I have been showing dogs about seven years; I have bred some very nice pups, have one champion to my credit and have several who damn well should be finished. But I am not a handler, so it will take me five or six times as long to finish my dogs (if at all) in this location because the handler competition is so fierce. This is not a "poor sport" attitude. It is the result of what has been happening in the Scottish Terrier ring (and I'm sure in a good many other breeds as well) with handlers and judges. I know my Scotties well enough to know when I am being beaten by lesser dogs. I know that in far too many instances it wouldn't matter if my competition was in the ring with a "boar hog" on lead, it would win the points. I have stood in the ring and seen the blatancy with which judges were instructed as to which dogs to "put up".

There aren't enough honest-to-goodness "not afraid of the consequences" judges out there for me to enter the majority of the all-breed shows just to show support for the Scottish Terrier breed. When I know I am going to have my dogs judged fairly, on their merits, then I will enter and show. When I see the same judges' names time after time on premium lists, knowing what they do and how they supposedly judge (because I have entered and exhibited under them many times past), then I will not waste my time, money and effort on those shows.

There are an awful lot of "me" around: people who have very nice Scotties, who are doing some good breeding, but who are very discouraged with the lack of principle and proper conduct on the part of the majority of our terrier judges. So, until such time as the judging improves considerably, let's not talk about entering our Scotties just to support the breed. Let's start talking about hiring some "untouchable" judges for both our all-breed and specialty shows.

GOODBYE TAM-O-SHANTER

by Paul J. Severson

When the registration papers came back we were surprised that two other people had thought also of such an unusual name as we had picked for our puppy. Bonnie Tam-O-Shanter III was her registered name but to us she was and always will be "Tam."

Tam died this morning. We had the vet put her to sleep and we held her as she slipped away. Tam was almost fourteen and although she had been deaf for many months she was still a part of the family. This weekend she had several episodes like epileptic attacks and this morning she apparently could no longer see and would get pathetically stuck in a corner. Neither would she eat nor drink very much nor did she seem to recognize us.

The other Scotties were so confused. For years they have greeted her every morning in a little ritual of respect. Oldest first, they would all touch noses with Tam and then run outside. This morning they touched noses and there was no response. They seemed so surprised. Last night Missy, the youngest and most alert, was so upset and barked a little nervous bark incessantly until scolded into quietness. They seemed to sense that Tam had changed.

Jon was just a toddler and Susan just a small baby when Tam-O-Shanter was born. Tam, after she grew up, seemed to regard them as somewhat larger puppies and probably always felt that the burden of raising them was heavy on her. Even when she was very old and not always so alert she would see one of them sitting in front of the TV. A look of recognition and young dog games remembered would cross her blurry black face and she would rush to them to lick their face and rub their hands and feet.

Tam had a distinctive way of "loving" her puppies and family. At first we worried because it looked so rough. She would kneel over a puppy (or a foot or hand on the floor) and rub with her chin and neck and shoulders. The puppies would wiggle and squirm and grunt but always wagged their tails for more. Her puppies were always vigorous and many were unusually affectionate animals. Perhaps her special method of love displayed was the reason.

Part of the sadness is that Tam's death marks the end of a special period in our lives. The children are little no longer. Life is more complex, more things and events have crowded in on us. The days of Tam-O-Shanter's youth were days of trips by car to grandparents homes with Tam asleep on the seat between us or in the back between Jon and Sue.

Often she would wake up, stretch a little, and put her head on my knee before going back to sleep. Many miles passed with her head on my knee and my hand on her sleeping head, the two of us in silent communication.

No wonder that the tears fell so freely as I dug that little grave this morning. It was hard to put that now frail black body into the earth. It was so final. I laid her down the way she often slept, on her side with her head down and touching her front paws. Her coat was still shiny and full and especially in the last years with heavy patches of silver gray around her ears.

All animal lovers know that sometimes they are privileged to have a special animal, one that is more alive and aware than others of their kind. That was the way with Tam-O-Shanter. We have tried and tried to breed another with that special sparkle. We have not been able to and I doubt if we ever will. Tam was our first Scottie. I think she always be first. We will remember her as long as we remember the things of this world.

Goodbye, Bonnie Tam-O-Shanter!

FISH OUT OF WATER

by Barbara B. Bush

(Observations Of A Sporting Dog Aficionado
At A Scottish Terrier Specialty)

You would think that a dog breeder of some 20 plus years would be equally at home in a ring full of Scotties as she was in a ring full of Cocker Spaniels...right? WRONG!

Two or three years ago, in a moment of great weakness, I took upon myself the task of raising up a Scottie, thence on to the shows. He was a lovely fellow—big and black, with a faultless coat and a head about a mile long. He did a lot of winning, and I had the best time with him—even though I found that my left arm was now about 1½ longer than my right arm. It is indeed a different situation than showing a Cocker Spaniel. Cockers are perfectly willing to do whatever is asked of them within reason, but a Scot does only what he feels like doing at the time, whether it is chasing hair balls in the next ring, attacking the dog in back of them, or watching the pigeons roosting in the rafters of the show building.

After a year or more with the first fellow, I contracted the same disease again. I got another one. This one was a very calm, placid boy and fit nicely into the scheme of things at the Cocker kennel. Of course, this would never do in the Scottie rings, so we had to enter the learning process of how to be a Scottie in the traditional sense. After several shows, it dawned upon my new little charge that Scotties are supposed to bark and snap and nip the heels of large, hairy breeds. He decided that he, too, would be a REAL SCOTTIE. So forward we went, the most recent of which was the Atlanta Scottish Terrier Specialty.

We jumped into my natty little sports car, in a great cloud of unpreparedness, laden with the accouterments of the show dog exhibitor...towels and papers and grooming kits and food and water and crates and miscellaneous junk. We drove across the border to Never-Never Land. That is, any place north of the Shoal River in Okaloosa County, Florida. Upon arrival, we found many people from very foreign lands, some actually from north of the Mason-Dixon line. It was going to be tough sledding.

The day before the Specialty there is a very large All-Breed show. The day dawned clear, bright and extremely cold. We had to be at the show site pretty early, as Scottie judging was to commence about 10 A.M. I know you have all heard the old saw about how dog people tend to be much like their breeds. This day, the truth of that maxim was plain. My cocker friends were huddled behind steaming mugs of coffee (some with a wee bit of "sweetener" in them), with woolen car robes wrapped around their necks and the snoozing Cockers in their crates, covered with a variety of towels and spreads. Not the Scottie people. They were charging around in their shirt-sleeves, preparing for the battle.

Upon closer inspection, I found that these terrier people are physical look-alikes to their favorite breed—sharp, beady little eyes, a strong and prominent jaw, and muscle-hard in their running gear. They dress to the nines—cashmere blazers, ultra-suede suits, designer clothes of all description. I thought I was not too shabby. I had on my preppy little sailing sweater and a navy blue skirt. Navy blue is so sincere, and I have had wonderful luck with that color. One of my Scottie traveling companions was aghast. "My God, you're not going in the ring with that blue skirt on, are you?" "You'll cover up the outline of the dog, idiot!" This probably explains why I went out of the ribbons that day. I did do some decent winning with my Cocker later in the day, so decided to hang around and take my licks at the next day's foray.

Apparently, every year before the Specialty show, the Atlanta club gives a pre-show dinner and have a little meeting for the changing of the guard. The club had planned their dinner in a motel banquet room. I thought to myself, "Here goes my money spent on God-awful motel food, again." (You see, when Cocker people have these dinners, you usually get something that looks vaguely like three-day old Gravy Train—either that, or some terrible, rubbery chicken thing with a disgusting sauce all over it.) But not the Scottie people. They had a splendid entree served. It was a London Broil sort of thing, on the rare side, with a clear mushroom sauce and absolutely delicious. I should have picked up on the vibrations again that I was in big trouble.

After a brief meeting in which they discussed with some pride their growth and development, and introduced their new reigning regent, they then had an auction to raise some bucks for the club. This perfectly delightful man came roaring out of the back of the room and put on a Rip Taylor routine—dashing about and hollering at everyone and telling horrible jokes. The only thing lacking in this act was the bagful of confetti over someone's head. He managed to sell off a collection of strange articles for outrageous prices. These Scottie people will buy anything that has a Scottie on it, around it, or near it. There were statuettes of Scotties that looked like goats—they bought 'em. There were tea towels that would not dry a tea cup, with Scotties embroidered on them—they bought 'em. There were chipped and dented book ends in Scottie shape—they bought 'em. I was amazed. I would only buy something at an auction like that, that was USEABLE. These folks simply did not give that a second thought.

I forgot to mention that the club also had set up a Hospitality Room, which is a nice touch. Even Cocker people do that from time to time. In attending their Happy Hour, I was surprised to find that Scottie people are very discerning in their choices of food and beverage. This is the only Hospitality Room I have ever found where the worst Scotch in the house was Johnny Walker Red, and the most common hors d'oeuvre was pate, maison. What a show—talk about impressive. The people in the room were quite friendly, but you had to take care not to back up too close to them, or they would snap. You absolutely must treat them just like you treat their dogs—with caution and strict attention at all times. Otherwise, they get cranky and out-of-sorts for the rest of the evening.

The Specialty day dawned cold, clear and bright. This apparently makes these people what they are today—alert, spunky and full of fight. They had a large sweeps entry (large in the sense that where I come from ten dogs is a good showing). They had a huge entry in the regular classes, with many specials dogs going into contention for the Breed win. Their trophies were myriad...and every last prize either had a Scottie silhouette on it, or was tied with a plaid ribbon. I mean, we are talking CLASS here. Over at the Cocker specialty, you got only a ribbon for your big bucks entry, and if you won the breed, you got a crock pot or some such thing.

I helped some of my friends fetch and carry their entries to the ring, occasionally running a comb through a beard or some furnishings, and getting criticized if I had the comb pointed in the wrong direction. The Rip Taylor gentleman showed up in the ring in this sprightly green-and-blue plaid jacket, and with great elan, won his class and promptly decided to auction off his trophy. He asked me, at ringside, if I would give him five dollars for it—I declined. After I had shown my fellow, receiving one of those no-fade ribbons, I stood around for a bit and marked catalogs. I then decided that I was very tired and would head for the motel and an extra-large Screwdriver (made with imported Russian vodka, as I have now learned from the Scottie people how to REALLY LIVE).

The little Scot I had been showing was going to go back to his "foreign land" birthplace, so I had only the Cocker with me. He and I set off into the sunset, back to the resting-place. We had cheese and crackers for appetizer, actually walked on grass (Scotties never do that—only X-pens for them), and relaxed in front of the TV and watched an old movie. Upon departure the next morning, the Cocker and I were amazed to find the premises absolutely pastoral. All the Scots and their people had left. There was not a bark nor a snarl anywhere—only Setters, Pointers and Cockers remained at the motel. The peace and quiet was wonderful.

Meanwhile, back south of the Shoal River, Robbie the Cocker and I already miss our friend, Mason. One of these days the sickness will creep up on me again, and we will return to do battle with our staunch, brave, funny, black, barking beasties. Scottie people, I don't care what they say about you—you're OK.

More and more the club is reflecting the varied interests of its members as shown by our meeting programs and activities of the group. Our concern for Scotties has produced a highly organized plan to save those Scotties whose lives may be jeopardy. Our Rescue is now ready to swing into action at a moments notice.

We are looking forward to a program on Whelping and the Care of the New Born Puppy and to our Annual Symposium dealing with many of the facets of grooming and showing in the breed ring. As evidence of a broad based club we have had a program on Tracking and plan a Tracking workshop in the fall. In addition we hope to initiate an All Terrier Match to be held in conjunction with other terrier clubs in this area. We also like to play and are looking forward to our annual summer picnic!

We welcome any STCA member who is in the area to join us at any of our meetings or "happenings".

OBEDIENCE

by Ruth Tryon, Obedience Chairman

While nothing great is ever accomplished without enthusiasm, it is equally true perseverance, patience and imagination are also key ingredients of any successful venture, including training Mac. We have often mentioned the tremendous necessity of enthusiasm and praise when working with Mac. Don't worry about what the neighbors or your friends think as you "carry on" about how bright he was to do something correctly. What counts is that you are getting a point across to him. Always remember, you cannot give genuine enthusiasm and encouragement without also giving Mac your complete attention. This is what you ask of him and it is only fair that you give him the same attention.

It is also equally important that we persevere — that we remember we didn't learn everything instantly when we were taught and it will take time for Mac to absorb it all. Repetition is an important key to learning and it is an essential in your training program. Again, one word of warning though, remember not to repeat an exercise until Mac becomes bored for then he loses all interest and you lose ground. Each Scottie is different and you will have to observe carefully the point at which you are losing him. Watch his ears and tail! Learn to read your dog.

Patience goes right along with perseverance and it will often take lots of both but once Mac does as you wish, you will realize it was more than worth the time and effort spent. Patience and calmness will bring results but if you find you are running short on patience or losing your temper because Mac seems to be frustrating you, stop working on that exercise. Mac will sense your frustration and it will only confuse him and slow down the learning process. Go to another exercise or play with him. Then you can go back to the problem. Once he does it correctly, stop. Always end on a positive note.

There are many great suggestions in Obedience training books to help you with these problems but there often comes a time when none of them seems to work. All is not lost for it is here that you take a good long look at the problem. Have you broken down the exercise into small parts? If not, try that. For example, the recall is usually taught as three exercises, on a 25 foot line for control, to come quickly and happily from a distance, from a short distance to come and sit directly in front of you within arms reach, and going to heel position from sitting in front. Then you eventually put it all together for the recall. Where is your trouble? Try and analyze and work especially on that part of the exercise. If none of the suggestions in any book helps, you still have your imagination. What turns Mac on? Mac is an individual and will respond to every idea in his own way. Maybe food if he is a real chow hound, maybe a change in the tone of your voice — how about the way you leave him — do you leave with a "Stay" or "Wait" so firm he is convinced he must stay rooted to the spot. Cue him in to the fact he is going to be called to you but not necessarily the moment you turn and face him. If he tends to sit on the stand for examination when you return, have you tried standing at his side when you return for a whole minute before releasing him? If he moves his feet during the examination, place his feet in an uncomfortable position and insist he stay that way until you release him. Standing in a comfortable position will then be a breeze for him. Keep his mind and attention focused on you at all times, including between exercises! Novice work is the basis for a good, obedient and happy companion at home and for the more advanced work in the ring. Off lead or on lead, Mac should honor your commands for sometime his safety can be at stake.

Using your imagination becomes a necessity when nice weather fails us. Even though it may be freezing cold, snowing, foggy or a blinding rain storm, we still can find many ways to train during that time. Sits and downs in the kitchen where so many interesting things happen and so many temptations to move are greater trainers — and the same exercises done in a room out of sight will convince Mac he must stay regardless of where you are or what is going on. If he breaks the long sit, try putting him on a bed and give him a 5 minute sit. This seems to be a big assist in convincing Mac you mean STAY wherever he is. If Mac's sits are crooked when heeling, why not practice inside, making sure you stop using walls and furniture to make him sit straight, thus re-enforcing in his mind the straight sit pattern. Leave Mac in another room and then call him — he won't have a straight line to you and must make the adjustment to a straight sit in front of you. The same theory can go for retrieving the dumbbell. Place it in a room, make sure it isn't in direct sight, thus making Mac think, find and get it back to you, again with a straight sit. Use your imagination to find different ways to get Mac to do things correctly but don't try to trick him. Always be straight-forward with him.

Don't forget that Obedience Trials scheduled to be held outside are held outside — rain or shine. So sometimes practice with Mac in the rain. He may wonder about your sanity but slosh ahead. Scotties can take rainy, misty days (think of Scotland's climate). It won't be long before Mac understands that, regardless of the weather, the team works together. Obedience Trials are also held regardless of the temperature so if it is a hot, sunny, humid day do think of Mac's health as well as comfort. Keep him in the shade before you go in the ring, see that he has had plenty of water to drink and cool him with a damp towel or pour some water on him to cool him if necessary, all before you go in. And give him a chance to take care of his needs. Once in the ring, if there is any delay, be sure you give Mac your shade and for the sits and downs give the grass a good rub with your foot at the place he will be sitting. Remember, you put him in this position so make it as comfortable and cool as possible. Once out of the ring, continue to keep him shaded and protected for his dark coat absorbs the heat.

The more thought and the more time you give to Mac's training the greater the companion he will be — and after all, isn't that the real reason you have him? Happy training!
