

THE EMPEROR

About ten kilograms is his full weight.
That's equal to one British stone and eight.
In pounds, they both convert to twenty-two which seem enough for what he plans to do.

To demonstrate to all he isn't weak
he struts his fit and muscular physique.
When he parades his right to regal fame,
he seems prepared to stand behind his claim.

Ten inches at the withers as he stands,
he isn't shy when making his demands.
What he intends to do I'll summarize:
He plans to rule the world, despite his size.

It's obvious he has no hint of fear.
The awesome power he projects is clear.
From all these signs we're driven to conclude that Scotties flaunt a royal attitude.

by Lee Netzler