GROOMING AND CONDITIONING THE SCOTTIE

PART IV

By Ann Gilkey

We have now reached that stage in our grooming of "Mac" where perhaps the most divergent methods, techniques and viewpoints exist. As this is read, reference should be made periodically to Diagram E, which shows both Profile and Top of head as it should look when grooming is completed. An attempt has been made to show the various desirable lengths of hair on the completed headpiece, but in such a way as to show just where stripping or clipping should be done, and to what length it should be kept. Since the head more than any other portion of a Scottie's anatomy sets him apart as a distinct individual, more concentrated effort is necessary in order to produce the most balanced headpiece possible. Regardless of what particular grooming techniques are used, one overall quality should be your primary goal . . . balance. As you become more and more familiar with the near-perfect image which you hope to produce, the many individual qualities which must be balanced by other qualities, begin to be more and more evident . . . balance between width and length of skull . . . between length of skull and forehead . . . between ear set and size against overall head size . . . and finally, between the overall picture of the finished headpiece, with that of the body. No one is able to create the most from all these in the very first attempt on an individual dog. From each grooming session should come some new insight as to how better to handle one area so that it will relate better to another . . . improving the overall balance of the finished product.

But we do have to start somewhere, and in finishing the headpiece, we must start with the handling of the forehead, throat and cheeks. About two weeks before the first show, and periodically as is needed, begin using your hand clipper, starting just above the breastbone, and work your clipping upwards gradually, going over your work so all hair is even in length. Carry your clipping up towards the corner of the mouth, but before coming to close comb the whiskers carefully forward and grasp all the loose hairs tightly so that none will be caught in the clipping. Just how close you bring your clipping to the corner of the mouth, and how far on the underjaw, will depend greatly upon that word again . . . balance. However, it seems that most heads require this clipping to be brought right to the corner but certainly no further. One rule which is always safe is that if there are any doubts, take off less than you think. You can always take off more, if necessary.

Since we have the clipper in hand, let us complete the areas which require this tool. If you will recall now, that imaginary line between the outer corner of the eye to the base of the ear, the area below this line is called the cheek, and must be clipped now, and periodically, as the hair here should be shorter than any other, and kept that way (see Diagram E). Working from that point near the ear (how much of tuft have you allowed?), clip forward to within about  $\frac{1}{2}$  inch of the outer corner of the eye. Your clipping should leave a smoothly curved line between the eye and the corner of the mouth. The diagram should help you considerably in arriving at just the right distances. Any hair you choose to remove closer to the eye may be taken off gradually and carefully with thinning shears.

The ears may be clipped at this same time. An Oster hand ear clipper will do a bit finer job than the No. 2 model. Clip the back of the ears carefully, working with the lay of the hair, beginning at the base to the tips. Trimming the edges of the ear will require the use of scissors, and more than a steady hand, but take care not to round off the tips to tightly. Most fanciers and judges prefer the tips pointed rather than rounded. The inner ear should be kept neat at all times since the upright position makes any lack of effort here very evident to the judge. The upper part of the inner flap can be hand clipped, or trimmed carefully with scissors, but the actual inner "bell" requires more particular care. Hairs inside the "bell" should be plucked out. Since this area is particularly sensitive, you may find the use of surgical tweezers or clamps advisable, and more practical than your fingers. These tools were designed specifically for this type of work, providing maximum results with a minimum of effort. As long as you are examining the inner ear, why not give it a general health check, and cleaning. Being observant, and examining often will avoid possible future grief, as ear infections are all too common.

Before any trimming or shaping is done to the eyebrows, comb them carefully forward and give "Mac" another look from all angles. Consider objectively the size, shape and color of the eyes, as well as the distance between them. Should "Mac" not be quite perfect in any of these areas (and few are), you will want to trim the eyebrows to minimize any shortcomings . . . they can not be eliminated! First consider the distance between the eyes, and if "Mac" seems a bit wide, allow the eyebrows to reach over the inside corner of the eyes so that the area between will be about  $\frac{3}{4}$  of an inch. This  $\frac{3}{4}$  inch area between the eyes should be trimmed close as illustrated in the Top view of Diagram E. In shaping the eyebrows you must consider the length which they are to be at the longest point. Should "Mac" have that desired small "varmity" dark eye, much less eyebrow will bring this point of perfection to the judge's attention. If, however, the shape or color is not quite desirable, you may feel that a little added length may shade these qualities, making them less obvious. However, long, thick eyebrows may become an "attention getter" as the alert judge is seldom fooled by this extraordinary length. Let the password again be balance . . . a longer skull and foreface can stand longer brows, whereas long brows on a short-headed dog will only make the fault more obvious. The length which seems to approximate the most typical heads is about  $1\frac{1}{2}$  inches at the longest point, so bring your scissoring from the outer corner of the eye in an evenly slanted line to the inner corner, where the desired length should be reached. Should you still be doubtful about the length, simply take the eyebrows off in stages, beginning with a length of about  $2\frac{1}{2}$  inches, and slowly take off a bit more each time until you feel you have reached the best balance. Think twice (or perhaps three times) before reducing the length to less than  $1\frac{1}{2}$  inches . . . "Mac" had better be near perfect in eye!

No less important than any other area of the head are "Mac's" whiskers. Although they contribute nothing to the physical makeup of our Scots, the whiskers perhaps more than anything else, seem to "make the difference" between a successfully "finished" Scot, and something much less. There is a tendency among exhibitors to do very little to the whiskers except to allow them to grow, feeling that the longer they are, the better. Undoubtedly the added length does help to give "Mac" the illusion of "more head," but before doing any trimming, comb the whiskers forward thoroughly, making them look as well as you can. Then set "Mac" on the ground, and after a few "shakes" bring him back to the table and take a second look. This is what the judges will see most of the time. Is it what you want? More than likely it isn't! Generally the overabundance of whiskers tends to distract from what might otherwise be a good head. The primary purpose of the whiskers is to enhance the overall picture of the headpiece. Just allowing them to grow generally produces stringy, untidy whiskers, difficult to keep together, and therefore unappealing. Refer to Diagram E, and notice the squareness of the whiskers in relation to the skull, and the neatness of the

BEST TERRIER BRACE to the Westie pair, Rannoch Dune Duke and Rannoch Dune Do Re Mi, owned by Mrs. Frank B. Brumby and handled by Cliff Hallmark. Judge, Mr. Alva Rosenberg.

The "International" does it again! The 1963 edition of the International Kennel Club show brought out a total of 2826 dogs entered, which undoubtedly will make it the "top" All-breed show of the year, an honor it held last year, with 200 less dogs entered. And it was a great show for Terriers too, as their entry was second only to the Working Group, with some 445 Terriers entered, also up from last year's entry.

The judging of the various Terrier breeds was split between three popular judges: Mr. William W. Brainard, Jr., Mr. Heywood R. Hartley, and Mr. William Kendrick. The placement of the Terrier Group was handled by Mr. Alva Rosenberg, who found the Skye bitch, Ch. Jacinthe de Ricelaine, owned by Glamour Kennels, as the winner. Second was given to the Airedale, Ch. Querencia's Suerte Brava, owned by Ercilia LeNy, and handled by Tom Gately. Third went to the Bedlington, Ch. Aquina's Diamond, owned by Mrs. Aquina Meyer, and handled by Tom Gannon. Fourth to the Wire Fox Terrier, Deko Druid, owned by Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Carruthers, III, and handled by Frank Ortolani.

The Best Terrier Brace award, also judged by Mr. Rosenberg, went to the pair of Westies, Rannoch Dune Duke and Rannoch Dune Do Re Mi, owned by Mrs. Frank B. Brumby, and handled by Cliff Hallmark. Unfortunately, we do not have the other placements for you.

(At this point I would like to digress from the 1962 survey to a projection into the future. It is hoped that the response to the Specialty at the Harbor Cities show will be good. If the competition could be as good in quality and in quantity as the Specialty in New York last February, the results would be most gratifying. It would be splendid if as much intersectional competition could be present as well.)

During 1962, 204 Welsh Terriers competed (202 in 1961) in the 286 shows. They competed 1022 times (1097 in 1961).

As a result of this competition 22 Welshies completed their Championships, exactly the same number as 1961. Of these 11 were dogs and 11 were bitches. Four dogs were imported (3 from England, 1 from Canada).

The 22 Champions of 1962 were: Amyll of Alvin Farm, Bernedell's Gun-smoke, Bernedell's Smoky Siobhan, Birr Ambush, Bottlebrook Burnet, Carlano Craff, Charleona's Mali, Colton Casino, Coltan Castanet, Coltan Comet, Coltan Countess, Dewi of St. Aubrey, Ernley Felstead Flashfoot of Reglib, Fancy Sailor of Reglib, Harham's Roll Call, Jadith's Clancey Typhoo, Jayness Falcon, Jayness Simon, McKaskle's Lady Beckey, Meleno of Alvin Farm, Pool Forge Cream Top and Vanity Fair.

Kansas, where he went Best in Show at the latter. And on April 13-14, their Eng. Ch. Bardene Black Jewel was shown at two Canadian shows, taking the Terrier Group at both, and going on to Best in Show the second day at Windsor, Ont. This gal is well on her way to becoming a Tri-International champion!

Spring is really here . . . what with baseball and dog shows on full schedule. Here in California, at least, interest in one does not interfere with the other, as evidenced by the multitude of transistors glued to ears during the dog-show judging.

The California season was ushered in with the Fresno-Bakersfield week end, April 6 and 7. In Scotties, females were predominant . . . no males were present at Fresno, and only one at Bakersfield. Mr. Rees L. Davies judged the bitches at Fresno, placing Winners Bitch and Best of Breed Marlorain Kennels' Marlorain Lollipop (Ch. Wychworth Windfall — Ch. Marlorain Abigail), handled by Daisy Austad. This finished "Lolly" for the title. Reserve went to Mrs. E. Mansure's Merrie Oaks Fury (Ch. Merrie Oaks Windjammer — Merry Oaks Forget Me Not), handled by Jimmy Butler.

Mr. John P. Hackett judged the lone male, and seven bitches at Bakersfield, giving Best of Breed to Mrs. Mansure's Merrie Oaks Fury, and Reserve in Bitches to Marlorain Silver Spoon (Ch. Wychworth Windfall — Ch. Marlorain Imogene) owned by I. E. and M. Sprankle. Winners Dog went to Jeanne Beran's Crescent Hill Blaze O'Glory (Ch. Crescent Hill Indian Scout — Blinker Bess).

Enthusiasm and interest is running high for the coming Scottish Terrier Club of California Specialty to be held at Harbor Cities. Over 35 puppies have been nominated for the Sweepstakes, a record entry for judge, Mr. Louis Murr, and many are coming from out of state.

Mrs. Gilkey wanted to clarify a mistake that crept into her "Tribute to Johnny" which appeared along with the Cover picture in the March issue. In the editing of the copy, a portion of the story was left out in which was told that "Desert Mirage" previously co-owned by Mrs. Gilkey and Mrs. Byron Schnug, was given to Mrs. Schnug in full ownership after "Mirage" had had her litter.

As was expected, the top ten Terriers in breed competition through February brought about a change of 7 of the 10 places reported last month. This is due entirely to the rather large entries defeated by our 7 new contenders at the Associated Terrier Specialties and/or Westminster. Only Nos. 1, 2 and 5 held their positions on the latest tabulation.

With special Specialties preceding the Chicago "International" itself, we can again expect some radical changes in our listing through March. Again, our "Good Luck" to you all, and may your contender be one of next month's Top Ten!

Secretary and Treasurer.

A glance at the 1951 International catalog shows that there were only seven Irish Terriers entered. The contrast between this and the entry for 1963 makes it plain that the breed has come back extremely well in the Midwest, and the enthusiasm shown at the Specialty and at the matches held during the year points to even better progress in the future. The surge of interest in many terrier breeds is evidenced by the fact that this year the Terrier Group was second only to the Working Group in the number of entires at the International.
