WHERE MEMBERS GATHER

All of the information in this department comes from the member clubs of the American Kennel Club. It is therefore, accurate, authentic and of worthwhile importance. If your club or breed is not represented each month, find out why. If you have any information send it to the monthly contributor of your breed notes, and if it is of enough interest it will appear in the GAZETTE.

Scottish Terriers

THIS issue of the column, written at the end of August, falls in a period of doldrums, a time when things are quiet;

its publication will occur just before the quietness of early winter; therefore it may be as well to use the idle time in considering a number of questions which are ordinarily shoved aside by active work.

There is, first of all, the question as to whether or no the basic purpose of the Scotty, or of any other dog, is to provide its own special form of companionship for mankind; to provide some measure of escape, or to fill some emotional void that is left vacant by the remainder of our lives, and there is the question as to how well the present-day Scotty is mentally able to fulfill that role. Character is the all-important factor in that companionship, and I believe that it is the constant search for mental character and physical quality, combined in the one individual, which keeps most people breeding dogs year in and year out.

In connection with this, there may be some question as to whether one should breed to achieve a combination of maximum character and maximum quality, or whether one should breed to meet the various physical requirements advocated in the clap-trap of those who know a little but who seek to appear to know much.

There is also a question as to whether the quiescence which is at present so general in the breed is a healthy sign that fanciers are devoting their energies to the business of breeding to achieve their ideal Scotty, or whether that quiescence is an unhealthy sign that they are merely breeding puppies without paying much attention to ideals or to proper standards of comparison.

There is a question as to whether the irregular support of shows held in the last two years or so has been due to the possibility that few Scotties last for a show season, or because people have been unable to stand the expense of showing, or whether it is due to the fact that variations in the caliber of the judges and in the amount of prize money make it impossible for exhibitors to derive much enjoyment from consistent showing. If the Specialties, Westminster, and Morris and Essex can draw more than 100 entries apiece, why should not other shows, held in the same territory and the same seasons, average at least more than 50 entries apiece?

In keeping with this, there is the question as to whether or no it is possible to find an adequate number of judges who are sufficiently sure of themselves to fully resist the pressure of social and political influence which is brought to bear upon them—and there is also a question as to whether or no there are enough exhibitors who are sufficiently sportsmanlike to refrain from attempting to influence judges.

There is the question as to whether or no the present preponderance of necessity breeding is dangerous, for continued close breeding may hold its strength and breed only to the side of its inherent virtues, or it may break down and breed only to the side of its inherent faults.

There is the question of whether fanciers should do their own thinking; attempt to solve their problems in the light of their own experience and what they have seen of the experience of others, and try to govern their future by a candid view of their present and their past, or whether they should be guided by the edicts of those comparative newcomers who become ecstatic over their first view of some half-truth that older fanciers have long since cast aside and forgotten.

There is a question as to whether or no, in the last analysis, judges, stewards, exhibitors, handlers, superintendents, club officials, editors, and writers are all servants of that indefinite something which is called The Game; there is also the question as to whether or no there is always much trouble when any individual, clique, or group attempts to set itself up as master of The Game.

There is no question of right or wrong in those matters which concern legitimate differences of taste—differences as to color, the reasonable variations in size and in the extent of blockiness, and so forth. But there is a very definite question of right or wrong in differences of opinion with regard to the details of conformation.

Those who prefer brindles need not take up arms against those who prefer blacks, but no defender of either color can justifiably defend a poor coat merely because he approves of the color.

Those who prefer a reasonably large Scotty are entitled to their opinion just as are those who prefer a reasonably small Scotty, but the defenders of the large cannot be allowed to defend coarseness, nor can the defenders of the small be allowed to defend weediness.

Differences of taste are legitimate, but arguments concerning them can offer no definite proof, are liable to waste time and energy, and are far too liable to involve the breed in needless and dangerous disputes.

Also, there is some question as to whether our present-day bitches are mentally and physically fitted to perform their role as producers, or whether their mental and physical character has caused them to become artificially dependent upon human intervention.

It may be quite true that almost any bitch can be made to produce puppies, but there is a great difference between a bitch that can produce a healthy litter entirely on her own, and a bitch that requires expert aid and attention every step of the way. The first is a pleasure to own, the second is an expensive nuisance.

Furthermore, no newcomer to a breed likes to pay good money for a bitch, and then find that it is nothing but a source of trouble or that he runs a constant risk of losing his investment. When enough people have encountered expense, trouble, and loss in their dealings with a breed, they turn their attention to something else, and that automatically causes a decline in the strength of the troublesome breed.

Some of these questions can be answered with a definite yes or no, some are too complex to have any definite answer; the conditions behind some of them are due to natural causes, and can be altered only by time, some are due to controllable perversions of purpose and can be corrected in a short time; some can be dealt with only by mass influence, some must be answered by each individual for himself. However, each one of them deserves a great deal of thought; actual thought, rather than mere discussion.—NORMAN HANKENSON, Basking Ridge, N. J.

Boston Terriers

WITH the fall shows ending, the season closes with many of the Club members disappointed with the small entries of the Boston terriers for some time past. Naturally, I can speak more about the conditions in the East, but a careful study of the show reports proves there has been a falling of entries in other localities as well.

From time to time there comes rumors in many breeds that different factions group together and where one group enters the others will not show, and so they dally along through the year, gaining a two point show here, a one point show there, at others none at all, blaming a judge or a club because they are hard put to it to win the necessary three point shows.

It surely is not possible that exhibitors in our breed have entirely lost all traits of good sportsmanship, but on the other hand, one dislikes to come to the conclusion that there are so few real champions in the making that if made at all, it has to be done by careful maneuvering in order to gain the coveted awards, instead of real competition in the open field.

One likes to think about and read about many of the fine champions of the past whose owners heroically and consistently entered every show, under every judge, winning when deserved, taking their defeats quietly with the resolution that there would be another day and another show, feeling sure that their dog had the necessary quality which would in time win a worthy championship.

Exhibitors were wont to remark that such a judge admired the terrier type, another the more bully specimen, and did not leave the ring with the remark that they were defeated because the show was fixed, the judge dishonorable, or at the least he never had learned how to judge a Boston terrier.

A great hue and cry was raised when the Boston terrier judges were deprived of their licenses and only the all breed judges were allowed the assignments so that one must show under them, if at all. When, finally, the licenses were restored to many of the specialty judges one expected to see a record entry, but, alack a day, conditions remained about the same, and the clubs have had to suffer because they could not possibly choose a judge who was going to suit each and every individual exhibitor.

The all-round judge doing a number of breeds at a show does not need to mind so much if he hasn't drawn a large entry of Boston terriers, as his entire entries in the show perhaps total up so fine that to him the Boston entry is just another breed, and he judges fearlessly and to the best of his ability, leaving the ring with an air of independence that as far as he is concerned, he has done his best and that's all there is about it.

The specialty judge wants to draw a good entry as he likes to feel that the breeders have confidence in his work, so why should he or she be penalized because he or she is reputedly honest and respectable, and with the best of intentions goes into the ring to place the breed as he feels they should be placed no matter who the owner or what the record of the dog at other shows.

At the smaller shows the judge may be forced to give top honors to a dog which has little championship quality whether he is outstanding or not among the other entries, and so flushed with victory away goes the winner to another show with more competition, and because here he cannot make the grade, that particular judge is out-now and forever more—and the novice fancier, because he is told to forego showing under so-and-so, finally becomes disgusted with dog shows, and decides that the game isn't worth the candle, anyhow, as all judges are rogues and all shows fixed as to the winners.

One is forced to come to the conclusion that today many champions which are in the making have such glaring faults that they fear open and honest competition, or else their owners are such poor sports that that will not show under a judge whom they know will not be swayed by past wins, or carefully chosen publicity stunts.

We all know the fable about the boy and the wolf. It would seem that the breeders of the All-American dog have been crying wolf so long, that they may wake up and find the breed has been devoured by selfishness and lack of poor sportsmanship, and honest incentive to better the breed.

If scant entries of our breed at the shows indicate that we have no good dogs, it is high time the breeders got busy. If we have them and cannot show them fearlessly, let's take stock and see what's wrong with them or us.

If the dog is really worth the name of champion he need not fear being judged under the present-day specialty judges most of whom have bred and raised them for many years. If he isn't, let's take our defeat gracefully.

If it is not yet possible for us to choose a preferred list of competent judges similar to those of many of the other breeds, let us stop penalizing the clubs, and support with what entries we can, the judges chosen and accord them the respect that is their due.—MRS. F. W. SAUNDERS, 321 Central St., Lowell, Mass.

Great Pyrenees

THE summer show season commenced with a bang in August, and I believe there has not been a show in the Eastern circuit to date at which the Great Pyrenees has not been represented, and in all but one instance, by an average of eight individual specimens or better. This should do much to keep our breed before the public.

It is often a question, at just this season of the year when coats are sparse and the dogs often thin, just how much stress should be placed on condition, and how much on advantageous publicity for the welfare of the breed.

As time goes on and we all have more dogs from which to choose, I feel certain that all will agree that only dogs should be shown which can be put down in perfect condition.

However, at the moment, such a practice would be detrimental to the mental attitude of the public, it seems to me, for such remarks as these are frequently overheard. "Oh, look at those dogs! They must be increasing, you never used to see that many!" and can only mean that in the mind of the buying public the connection is strong between numerical status of a breed at a show and popularity!

And so our apologies to the judges with the words, "We all know better!"

But more indicative of better days ahead for the Pyreneans even than numerical increase is the fact that at this summer's shows the number of exhibitors has increased and four have made entries at practically each event. Two new champions, both from the string brought over by Mr. and Mrs. Crane in April, have emerged—in bitches, Maya de Langladure of Basquaerie, the property of the Côte de Neige Kennels in Pittsfield, Mass., and Ibos du Val d'Aure of Basquaerie of the Basquaerie Kennels in Needham.

THE JUDGES HAVE SPOKEN

THE doggy enthusiasts of the Eastern States turned their thoughts toward Lenox, Mass., recently, where the annual show of the Lenox K.

Maridor English Setter Best in Show At Lenox

C. was staged on the grounds of the Berkshire Hunt and Country Club, an ideal setting for such an event. After several inclement days, the lowering skies which greeted the early risers in various parts of New England that morning were not particularly encouraging. But the confirmed exhibitors stepped on their self-starters and headed for the show, and, although the day was not extremely bright, the threatened rain did not arrive, and the show was run off to a very successful conclusion under auspicious conditions. In fact, some persons felt that the absence of a hot sun was a very welcome feature.

A total of 540 dogs in more than 600 entries made a very good show, and this excellent entry was led by the cocker spaniels under that veteran judge, the Hon. Townsend Scudder. The second largest entry was in German shepherd dogs, 33 in number, under the doyenne of the famous Morris and Essex show, Mrs. H. Hartley Dodge, to whom the German shepherd has long been a well-beloved breed. Fourth in order came the foxterriers—24—for that widely known terrier judge, Fred A. Cadwell of Brookline, Mass., who also had good entries in his other terrier breeds.

Dr. Henry Jarrett of Philadelphia had an excellent entry, the third largest, of 25 dachshunde. Bob Sedgwick, of New York City, welcomed with enthusiasm, had an exceptionally good entry in cairns and Skye terriers. In Doberman pinschers an unusually good turnout of 16 appeared for the judgment of Frank A. Thain of Newtonville, president of the New England specialty club. Twenty-seven Irish setters appeared for the judgment of Francis M. Curran of Holyoke, Mass. H. Alvin McAleenan of New York City set the ribbons among a dozen Scotties. Fred A. Bearse of Springfield had 17 Boston terriers. Mrs. Frank T. Clarke of Brooklyn, N. Y., had 32 of the toy breeds, and the remaining breeds, with good entries for each, were divided between the veteran Charles G. Hopton of New York, Clarence N. Grey of Marblehead, and John A. Cuneo of Boston, while Mrs. Henry Jarrett placed the awards in the Childrens' Handling Classes.

The gun dog group brought out eight contestants. This class was judged by the Hon. Townsend Scudder, who placed the widely known English setter, Ch. Sturdy Max, owned by the Maridor Kennels of Longmeadow at the top. Second went to the cocker spaniel, Ch. Tommy Tucker VI, owned by Mrs. H. T. Van Ingen; third to the pointer, Clayton S. Purdy's Della, and fourth to the handsome Irish setter, Miss Laura F. Delano's homebred Ch. Cloudeen Girl of Knocknagree.

The hound group was judged by Dr. Jarrett, and here somewhat of an upset, from what has been the general rule at many shows, occurred. Ten competitors were ably shown, and after going through them most minutely, Dr. Jarrett placed the greyhound, the Halcyon Kennels' Ch. Southball Moonstone of Halcyon first: the well-known Russian wolfhound, Louis J. Murr's Ch. Vigow of Romanoff, second; third the dachshund, Maude Daniels Smith's Maxi v. Dachsafen; and fourth the whippet, Mrs. George L. Shearer's Snyderic of Meander.

The working dog group was judged by Mrs. Dodge, and was well filled. The first place went to the German shepherd, Maurice Rose's Arras aus der Stadt Velbert; second to the Old English sheepdog, winner of many contests, Mrs. Lewis Roesler's Ch. Downderry Volunteer; third to a Great Dane, R. P. Stevens' Ch. Randolf Hexengold; and fourth to the boxer, Latch Up Kennels' Propan Ben Satan.

The terrier group, judged by Bob Sedgwick, had plenty of food for thought among the ten contestants, and when he placed the Skye terrier, Mrs. K. Metcalf-Allen's Ch. Blackie Aus dem Asgard Clan (what a name for a Scottish dog) at the head of the class there was a burst of approval, for the seldom-seen breed had won many admirers. Second went to the Kerry Blue terrier, Dr. Edward R. Cuniffe's Ch. Ben Edar Bowcock; third to the Scottie, Mrs. Gilbert C. Barrett's Brack of Sherwood; and fourth to the Irish terrier, John Mulcahy's Ch. Better'n Ever.

The toy group was judged by Mrs. Clarke, and the winner proved to be a Pekingese, Mrs. Richard Quigley's Pier Yu Go of Orchard Hill. Second went to the Brussels griffon, Rosalind Layte's Ch. Hitane of Burlingame; third to the Japanese spaniel, Mrs. E. H. Berendsohn's Kumochi No Koban, and fourth to the Pomeranian, Mrs. J. R. MacLean's Bronze Prince of Toy Haven.

The non-sporting group was adjudicated by the veteran, Charles G. Hopton, whose awards are always attended with great interest by the spectators. First place went to the chow chow, Tally Ho Kennels' Ch. Far Land Thunderstorm; second to the Dalmatian, Tally Ho Kennels' Ch. Cruiser of Tally Ho; third to the Boston terrier, Dr. O. M. Deems' Ch. Elyria Easter Parade; and fourth to the schipperke, H. P. Claussen's Michael Son of Ti.

The ring was then cleared for the final award of best in show, to be made by Mr. Grey. English setter, greyhound, German shepherd, Skye terrier, Pekingese, and chow chow duly appeared and paraded around the ring. After going thoroughly over all the contestants, and again moving them, Mr. Grey finally gave the honor to that constantly winning English setter, the Maridor Kennels' Ch. Sturdy Max, ably shown by Charles Palmer. The award earned hearty approval, for Sturdy Max now has his home in Longmeadow. This brought to a close a most successful show, and exhibitors and spectators started for home with many pleasant anticipations of next year's show.—

THE ONLOOKER.

SOMETHING of an index to the record-breaking entries expected at many of the fall and winter shows was given at the recent Westchester K. C. all-breed fixture on the grounds of the Westchester Country Club in Rye, N. Y., when more than 850 dogs appeared on the benches. It made the largest show in the history of this old club, and it surpassed all the other exhibits that have taken place in the Metropolitan section during the past summer. Henry T. Fleitman of New York City judged the final class, and he found a grand lot competing for best in show.

The top honor in the show went to that outstanding Scottish terrier, Flornell Soundfella, owned by the Relgalf Kennels of Mr. and Mrs. Mark S. Matthews of Rye, N. Y. This made the second time in two days that the Scottie had gone to the top, for it defeated all breeds at Tuxedo. And once more, Soundfella was in splendid coat and condition, and he responded perfectly to the handling of Russell Openshaw.

Prior to stepping into the final ring, Flornell Soundfella had come under the critical eye of Dr. Samuel Milbank in the terrier group. This was one of the keenest divisions in the show, and shades of difference decided in all cases. The strongest challenge came from the Sealyham bitch, Ch. Wolvey Noel of Clairedale, owned by Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Penney of Riverhead, L. I., N. Y. Third came the excellent wire foxterrier bitch, Ch. True Charm of Wildoaks, owned by Mrs. R. C. Bondy of Golden's Bridge, N. Y., and fourth the Welsh terrier, Ch. Galen Maltose of Marlu, owned by Maurice Len Maltose of Marlu, owned by Maurice Polak of West Long Branch, N. J.

The hound group was carried off by that celebrated winner, the Russian wolfhound, Ch. Vigow of Romanoff, owned by Louis J. Murr of Spring Valley, N. Y. In second place was the beagle, Ch. Foxcatcher Mertryman, owned by Mrs. William du Pont, Jr., of Bellevue, Del.; third, the greyhound, Ch. Southball Moonstone of Halcyon, and owned by Mr. and Mrs. Edward T. Clark of tally compared them. Practically every one of the six were worthy of high honors. So even were their qualities that the prize might easily be given to any one of the six contestants. However, a decision had to be reached, and the judge, taking the handsome cup, offered by Thomas F. Kemp for the best in show, and its accompanying rosette, placed them in the surprised hands of Mrs. DeForest Danielson for her papillon, the double champion, Offley Black Diamond, which had showed beautifully, at rest and in motion, with well-carried ears and tails.

A very pleasing black and white dog, by this win the papillon was making history in the United States, for I believe this is the first time that a specimen of this breed ever attained such high honors. A most generous burst of applause from a very sympathetic body of spectators greeted the award, and the winner received the congratulations of her competitors very graciously. This brought another show to a very jolly conclusion, and with mingled adieux and promises for later reunions, the gathering dispersed.—THE ON-LOOKER.

MAKING a spectacular return to competition, Flornell Soundfella, the Scottish terrier which made such an auspicious debut at this year's Westminster show, captured best of all breeds at the annual feature of the Tuxedo K. C., held in the natural amphitheatre at Tuxedo Park, N. Y., for the Relgalf Kennels of Mr. and Mrs. Mark S. Matthews of Rye, N. Y. The final award was made by that popular all-rounder, Dr. Henry Jarrett of Philadelphia, before a large gathering of dog lovers.

Seldom has a terrier been put down in better coat and condition than upon this occasion, and the last ounce of perfection was certainly needed in such a strong array of contenders. Four consistently winning champions and an imported flyer appeared against Flornell Soundfella in the final class, while in the terrier group the Scottie had to show better than three champions which have piled up very impressive records.

In the terrier group, second to the Scottie came the noted Sealyham bitch which has carried off five best in show honors during the past summer, Ch. Wolvey Noel of Clairedale, owned by Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Penney of Riverhead, L. I., N. Y. Third came the Marlu Farm's notable Welsh terrier, Ch. Galen Maltose of Marlu; and fourth Mrs. R. C. Bondy's great wire foxterrier bitch, Ch. True Charm of Wildoaks.

The hound group was headed by that celebrated harrier, Ch Mr. Reynal's Monarch, owned by Amory L. Haskell of Red Bank, N. J. In the final judging this grand dog which this year defeated all breeds at Morris and Essex appeared as the unofficial runner-up for Tuxedo's major honor. Second came the greyhound, Ch. Southball Moon-stone of Halcyon, owned by Mr. and Mrs. Edward T. Clark of Goshen, N. Y. Third came Louis Batjer's beagle, Meadow Lark Brevity; and fourth the Balmacaan Kennels' Norwegian elkhound, Ch. Niela.

Another strong contender for the final honor was the black standard poodle, Ch. Phillioc Rumpelstiltskin, owned by Mrs. Milton Erlanger of Long Branch, N. J., which topped a strong non-sporting group. In second place was the chow, Ch. Far Land Thundergust, owned by Mrs. William MacFarland of Camden, N. J. Third came M. E. Kaloe's Dalmatian, Ch. Imperial Duke of What Ho; and fourth S. U. Grant's Boston terrier, Queen Ann's Lace.

The toy group was carried off by the Pekingese, Ch. Prince Tang of Clitheroe, owned by Mrs. J. D. Prince, Jr. of Mountain View, N. J. Second came the toy Manchester terrier, Ch. Kiki, owned by Mrs. M. L. Richards and Mrs. L. Mills. In third place was the Pomeranian, Princess Erika, owned by Mrs. E. Sivori; and fourth the miniature pinscher, Mr. and Mrs. K. J. Hedengren's Count Otto v. Montgomery.

In the gun dog division of the sporting group, best was taken by the cocker spaniel, Ch. Tommy Tucker VI, owned by Mrs. H. Terrell Van Ingen of Greenwich, Conn. Second place went to the English springer spaniel, Ch. Fast, owned by Mrs. W. A. M. Morin of Columbus, Ga.; third to the Happy Valley Kennels' English setter, Ch. Pilot of Crombie of Happy Valley; and fourth to Jay F. Carlisle's pointer, Maesydd Marquis.

Best of the working group, and a strong challenger of the Scottie in the final class was the German shepherd, Pfeffer von Bern, owned by John Gans of New York City. Second was taken by the Doberman pinscher, Ch. Sonia of Westphalia, owned by the White Gate Kennels of Willow Grove, Pa.; third by Lawrence Collins' Old English sheepdog, Ideal Weather; and fourth by the Barmere Kennels' boxer, Ch. Just von Dom of Barmere.

MARIQUITA CAVALIER

Winner of the best in show trophy at the recent exhibition of the Pacific Cocker Spaniel Club

Mrs. David Wagstaff, president of the Tuxedo K. C., handed to Russell Openshaw, who handled Flornell Soundfella, the handsome silver trophy emblematic of best in show, while the vast majority of the spectators were still present.—DIOGENES.

THE Pacific Cocker Spaniel Club held its annual specialty show at the spacious Neptune Beach grounds at Alameda, California, on September 12, an ideal place for showing sporting dogs. C. B. Van Meter, breeder of the famous Stockdale cockers, made his debut as judge, and drew an entry of fifty cockers with plenty of quality. Mr. Van Meter's contact with so many high class cockers, as he has bred and shown, helped him to judge his classes speedily and efficiently with quality, type, and soundness prevailing all through the show. After the judging, it was gratifying to see spectators and exhibitors alike swarming into the ring to congratulate Mr. Van Meter on his fine judging.

The trophies, 42 in number, equalled those of the best all breed shows in quality. Best of breed went to Robert H. Sanderson's gorgeous buff, Mariquita Cavalier. This little dog just past two years old, is all quality and one of the flashiest show dogs now going the shows. Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Hunt of Modesto, California, made another nice win with their Ch. Hunt's Blue Pepper, by going best opposite sex.

Best of winners, solid color, went to Cavalier; and winners bitch, solid, to a little flyer owned by George Klein, of Sacramento, named Lena of Derby Park.

Parti-colors found a magnificent black and white, Knebworth Superbus, owned by the writer, best of winners; with Harry F. Wright, of Los Angeles, taking the points in bitches, with a red and white Wright's Sally Jane.—NANCY LEE NANNETTI, Secretary.

Marional English Setter Tops Columbus All-Breed

There was keen competition in all divisions, and the English setter survived an especially strong gun dog group to gain the final class.

In the hound variety group, best went to the quite sound beagle, Ch. Foxcatcher Oberon, owned by the Hedgehaven Kennels. Best of a nice lot in the working dog group was the outstanding Doberman pinscher, Muck von Reyno, owned by Mrs. M. V. Reynolds.

The terrier group, as usual, brought out the largest array in any division in the show. Best in this group went to the well made Jones carried off best in show at the annual Capital City Kennel Club exhibit, held in conjunction with the recent Ohio State Fair at Columbus, Ohio.

Scottie, Briarcroft Marksman, owned by F. W. Zimmerman. The toy group was headed by the Pekingese, Ondracek's Tse Ho, owned by Mrs. Gladys Ondracek. And in the non-sporting group, best was carried off by the Boston terrier, Wood's Victoria Rockefeller, owned by E. H. Woods.

There was a large attendance throughout the dog show, which proved one of the most popular features of the Fair, and when the final class was judged the ring was the focus of all eyes.—RALPH H. BREHM.

CH. ACHAT VON WERDERHAVEL-STRAND, a dachshund, the property of Victor Moench, won the highest honors at the show of the Erie County Field Dog Club, Inc., held at Buffalo, N. Y., on September 13. The show was benched in the old Elmwood Music Hall, an excellent building in which to have a dog show. Although the entry was a few short of the 1935 exhibition, the dogs that were judged were almost all of the highest order so the show may be written down as a most successful one.

Only sporting dogs and sporting hounds were judged. Of course, the dachshund was the winner of the latter class. The best sporting dog was the pointer, Ch. Highbank Perfection, owned by J. G. Shearer, Ford City, Pa., which naturally was the best of the pointers. In English setters, best of breed was Susan Belle of Maridor, owned by Samuel C. Johnson, Rome, N. Y.

Best of breed among the Irish setters was Red Blaze Larry, the property of George H. Puls. Among the cocker spaniels, highest honors went to Hickory Hill Equipoise, owned by Jack L. Wehle. In English Springer Spaniels, Ch. Marol Sir Hector, owned by Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Beale, went best of breed. The winner in beagles was Showman Trueboy, owned by W. C. Liczapp, Jr. The Russian wolfhound winner was Lady Gracinka.

There also was an interesting class for children. All were under 12 years of age. The winner among the boys was Carl Schreiber, Jr. The girls' prize went to Ruth Ann Sultz.—CHARLES D. CURTIN.

ROBINHOOD OF MARIONAL

At the show of the Northbrook club, this well-known and champion English setter was declared best of all entries by G. Glebe, who is seen giving the trophy to Charles Davis

CH. ROBINHOOD OF MARIONAL, an English setter, which belongs to the Marional Farms of Columbus, Ohio, won the best in show award at the recent exhibition of the Northbrook Kennel Club. The award was made by G. V. Glebe, and met with the warm approval of the gallery. It brought to the close a most interesting show, which was benched in Northbrook, Ill. The building in which the show was held was a splendid one; the weather was ideal; and there were more than 600 entries. All these things made the Northbrook show one of the outstanding successes of the late summer circuit.

Of course, Ch. Robinhood of Marional won in sporting group No. 1. Second in the division was the Irish setter, Ch. Ruxton's Mollie O'Day. Third, the cocker spaniel, Casso Black Man. Fourth, the Labrador retriever, Mick of Barrington.

In the hound group, first went to the beagle, Ch. Merry Hicks, owned by W. C. Edmiston of Ralston, Neb. Second, the Russian wolfhound, Prince Kossack of Glenwild. Third, the dachshund, Ch. Hansel v. Lindenhuhl. Fourth, the Norwegian elkhound, Ch. Rurig av Romsdal.

In the working group, first went to the Doberman pinscher, Ch. Jockel v. Burgund. This dog is owned by Owen A. West of Lake Forest, Ill. Second to the collie, Young Lector O'Bayou Haven. Third to the German shepherd, Rudi von der Starrenburg. Fourth to the Great Dane, Baron v. d. Bad Stadt-Schwab-Hall.

In the terrier group, first went to the Airedale terrier, Ch. Authority's Coletta of Harham. This bitch is owned by Harold Florsheim of Highland Park, Ill. Second to Hetherington Gypsy. Third to the bullterrier, Kellog's Argyle Lad. Fourth to the standard schnauzer, Annchen of Lustucru.

First in the toy group was awarded to the Pekingese, Sand Boi of Iwade O'Ceylon, owned by the Ceylon Court Kennels of Lake Geneva, Wisconsin. Second to the miniature pinschers, Evi v. d. Koenigsbach. Third to the Chihuahua, Ch. Bebits de Oro Gitanilla. Fourth to the Pomeranian, Kennelquest Sister.

In the non-sporting group, the French bulldog, Ch. Miss Modesty was awarded first. This dog is owned by John F. Maginnis of Chicago, Ill. Second place to the chow chow, Ch. Lu Tangs Shi Hi. Third to the bulldog, Golden Myth of Wayston. Fourth to the standard poodle, Merry Widow of Salmagundi.

Children classes again brought much applause from the ringside. These classes were ably judged by A. Creaney of Glenview, Ill.—EMILY SCHWEITZER, Secretary.

THE 23rd annual dog show of the New York State Fair Association was held on the Fair grounds at Syracuse, N. Y., on September 8-9. The number of entries was less than last year, and only a little more than half as many as attended the show given at the same place, last spring, by the Onondaga Kennel Association.

This was undoubtedly due to the inexperience of the new state fair director, for the lack of entries was in the puppy, novice, and local classes. Fortunately, the superintending was done by the Foley organization, so the quality was high, there being 24 champions entered, and about as many more that were hoping to finish at this show. It was staged in the modern way, in a large, airy tent, with plenty of space between the aisles, while the judging was done in an adjoining tent.

The judging was not as interesting as usual, for most of the classes had only one

welsh terriers—

At least 75% of one's success as breeder depends on the quality of one's brood bitches.

We offer nine bitches whose combinations of blood will give you 100% satisfaction as foundation stock—Three can be shown—Also two male puppies who can be used at stud and do some winning. Two males, one a proven sire of typical big boned, sound coloured puppies. Both can be shown. Welsh Terriers are my hobby and it is my desire to breed for improvement of the American-bred.

Our dogs are well known for soundness, type, unbeatable texture of coat and colours, correct shape, size, colour and placement of eye, lovely Welsh ears (light weight leathers), straight real Welsh fronts but not coarse in shoulder, "cat paw" feet, exceedingly smart lines and personality.

The above are all grand and great-grand-children of the famous English Champion Senny Rex, and are line bred in order to keep as closely as possible to the remarkable Welsh type and colour of Senny Kennels in Wales. I believe our stock can be bred to the most modern studs of the day without endangering the type and character of the offspring.
